TOURISM MALAYSIA

MORE THAN JUST RARE FRUITS AND
EXOTIC SPICES
A good way to get to know a Malaysian town is to visit its markets. Take a stroll down to the Siti Khadijah Market, a fitting name for a market mostly run by women. Here, there's something for everyone from fresh produce to traditional cakes and crafts. The ambience resembles a slice of life in Kelantan --- featuring colourful sights, scents and sounds of the local community. There's truly more with every visit. This is Malaysia, where you can experience the warmth of the Malays, Chinese and Indian (three of among Asia's great civilisations) as well as other indigenous cultures.

Minister's Foreword

Over the years, Malaysia has grown in prominence as a premier destination for business, travel and leisure. Malaysia's unique amalgamation of race, culture and traditions coupled with its beautiful and modern landscape makes the country the perfect destination for all manner of world travelers and thrill seekers.

Of the most universal of tourist leisure activity when in Malaysia, is shopping. And there are many reasons to shop in Malaysia - from the world class malls, swanky high-end boutiques and street bazaars to the wide range of duty free items, local handicrafts and designer products. The relatively attractive exchange rates also make for value - for - money spending for an entire spectrum of consumers.

At the same time, Malaysia enjoys three 'mega' sale events every year which are the Malaysia GP Sale, Malaysia Mega Sale Carnival and Malaysia Year-End Sale organised annually by the Ministry of Tourism and Tourism Malaysia. What began as the Government's aspiration to fast track Malaysia as a leading shopping haven has since evolved into a much anticipated event for both locals and tourists alike from around the world.

The Sale events in Malaysia herald an irresistible shopping escapade nationwide. Visitors to the country can expect to enjoy great discounts and promotions on a wide variety of products and services including accommodation, transportation, entertainment, as well as for tour and travel packages. It is a great opportunity for everyone to get creative with gifts and souvenirs for loved ones, rejuvenate tired bodies and minds and enjoy complete top-to-toe makeover at a fraction of the normal price.

With this in mind, I would like to urge our visitors to join in the country's neverending celebration, shop to your heart's content, enjoy your sojourn here and return home with great memories of Malaysia.

Happy bargain hunting!

Tis' The Season to Shop & Give!

All over the world people are and will be celebrating some form of national or cultural festival as we speak. Some festivals like Christmas, Eid ul-Fitr and the Chinese New Year involves giving and receiving of gifts and money to family and friends. For most, the act of giving is indeed a wonderful experience. Although you may not actually be giving the gifts until the festive seasons come around, buying them at other times during the year can be very fulfilling. Sometimes simply finding a great gift for a loved one can put you in a great mood and make you feel as though you have done something wonderful.

This year, when you travel to Malaysia, check out the local brands and products for gift inspirations. Our beautiful handicrafts like batik, pewter, silverware and woodcarving make for great and unusual presents while the local designers dare to be bold and creative in their designs of apparel, shoes and accessories. Take time to browse the country's world-class malls, trendy bazaars and handicraft complexes for the perfect something to take home with you. With the attractive exchange rates and duty free status of most items in the country, visitors to Malaysia can enjoy fantastic shopping knowing that it is money well spent.

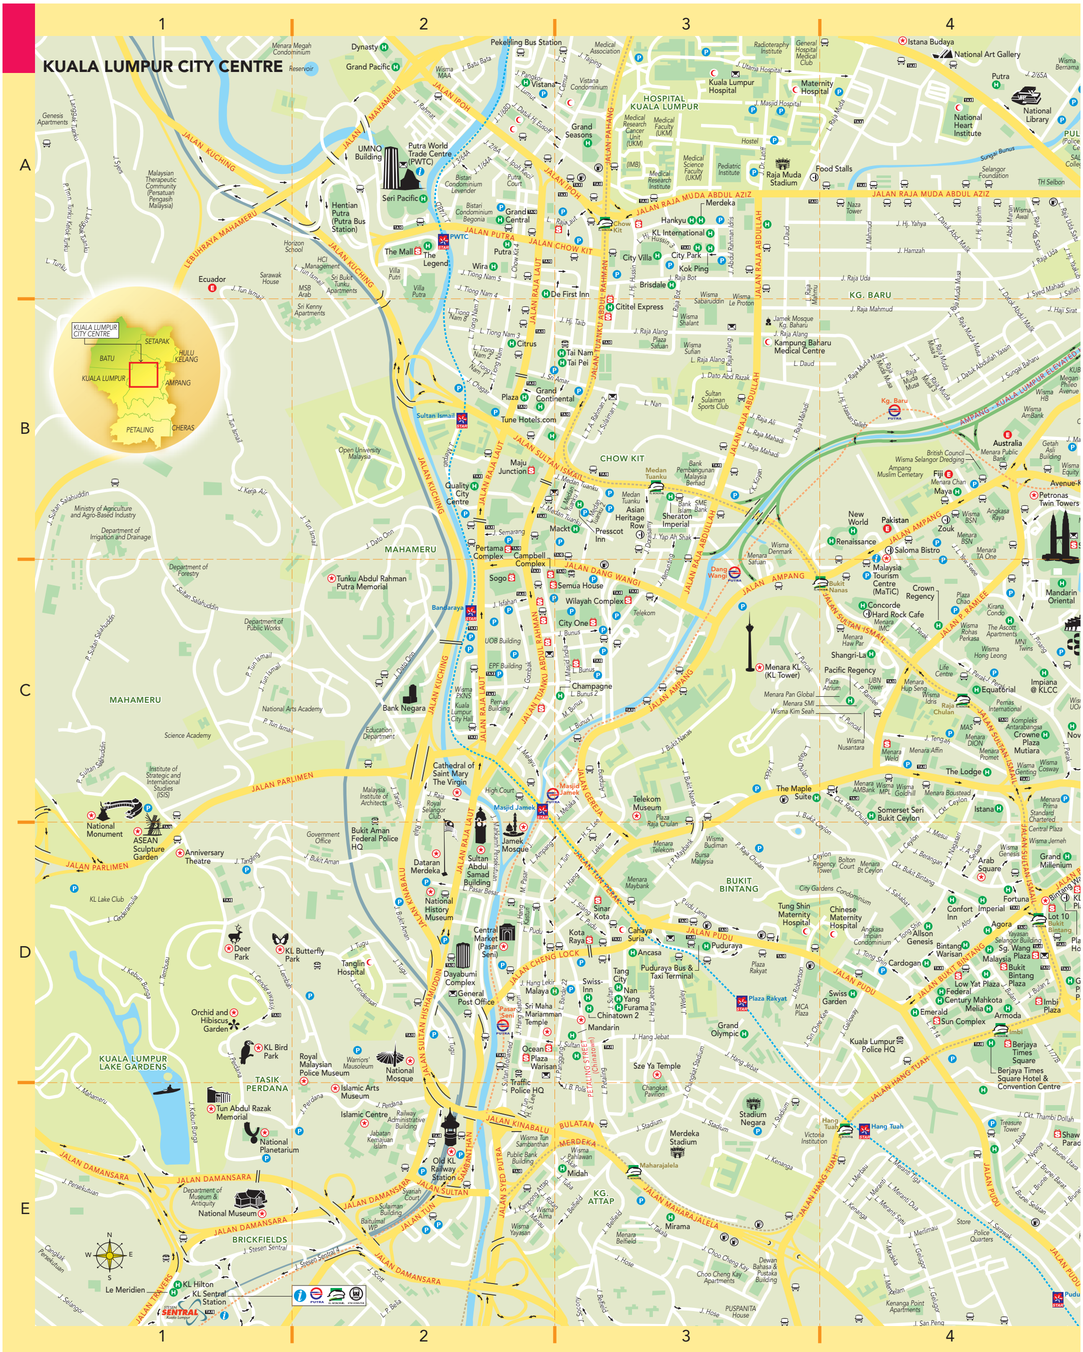

'When in Rome….' or so the adage goes; likewise when in Malaysia do what the locals like to do best - EAT. Do try the multitude of local cuisines available everywhere and ask around for the best places to have them. You'd be surprised how almost everyone here has his or her own favourite restaurants, stalls or food courts to suggest and what food to tempt you with.

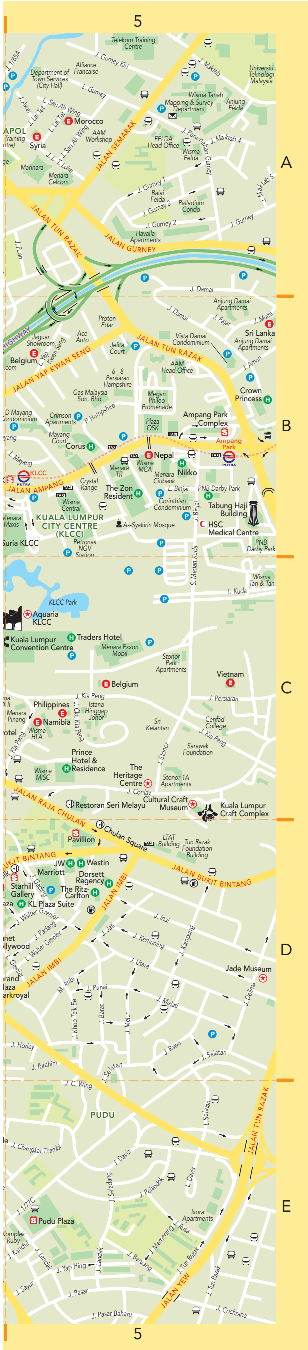

And once you're done shopping and eating, it's time to sit back and relax. Soak in Malaysia's beautiful landscapes, its exciting blend of culture and traditions and get to know its friendly people. What you learn of Malaysia will make you want to come back, time and time again!

Langkawi Sprees

Welcome to tropical island vacations...and if you're holidaying in Langkawi Island, brace yourself for something more than just the glorious sun and blue sea - SHOPPING!

Carrying duty free status, the island offers an extensive range of items to be purchased at special tax exempted prices. In Kuah town, which is also the central district of the island, rows of stores can be found selling electronic gadgets, household goods, branded products, cosmetics and fragrances, chocolates, cigarettes and liquor. Popular stores are the Langkawi Mall, Langkawi Fair Shopping Complex and Jetty Point Duty Free Complex.

More shops can be found along the tourist-favouring beaches of Cenang and Tengah where stores sell local crafts, delicacies and clothes in addition to the usual duty free merchandise. Fancy local items like pewter, crystal and glassware can be found at the duty free mall adjoining the Langkawi Underwater World and the outlets at the Langkawi Oriental Village. For a taste of some local-flavoured shopping, drop by at one of the numerous night markets and see what the locals sell and buy.

The island's duty free shops are stocked well enough to often drag holidaying sun-seekers away from the palm-fringed beaches. So, though lazing on a beach hammock would seem the ideal way to spend your holiday, do try and shop around for a bit. The duty free prices are certainly worth a few hours of your island vacation.

More than just an island destination, Langkawi is also a haven for duty free shopping!

Got a love for labels?

Come to Kuala Lumpur, a shopping-obsessed city teeming with exclusive local and international designer brands. High fashion is abundant here in glitzy malls and ranges across apparel, accessories, cosmetics and fragrances. What more, the very appealing Ringgit Malaysia makes label hunting a totally delightful experience.

In the bustling retail district of Bukit Bintang, popular shopping malls like Pavilion Kuala Lumpur and Starhill Gallery carry some of the world's most luxurious brands such as Bottega Veneta, Asprey, Coach, Giuseppe Zanotti, Hermes, Montblanc, Salvatore Ferragamo, Aigner, Burberry, Prada, TOD'S, Loewe and Versace just to name a few. A host of affordable second tier labels like Zara, Mango, Guess, Club Monaco and numerous others are available too.

Just a stone's throw away from this district the Suria KLCC stands in the shadow of the famous Petronas Twin Towers. Here too, shoppers will be spoilt for choice in the selection of designer merchandise. If you are looking for something exclusively Asian, do check out Dewi Moon, Arzu, I Kartini, Ang Eng and Sibel. Aseana, an enclave within Suria KLCC features fabulous couture from Farah Khan. Located at the fringe of the town centre, The Gardens at Mid Valley City is shelved with lush offerings hot from leading runways of the world. For a touch of local designs, stop by its 2201 Fashion Avenue, a unique platform showcasing the fashion works of aspiring local designers.

Scattered through Kuala Lumpur are malls like the Mid Valley Megamall, Avenue K, Sunway Pyramid, 1 Utama Shopping Centre and the Curve which offer a wide range of local and imported designer goods.

From elite labels favoured by a discerning clientele to more affordable brands accessible to the masses, the shopping malls of Kuala Lumpur are havens that cater to a vast range of designer preferences.

BRAND CULTURE

Facets of Brilliance

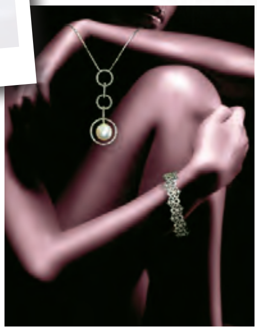

Diamonds are a girl's best friends…or so the famous saying goes, but in Malaysia one can live up to this adage as gold, diamond and just about every other form of jewellery are relatively inexpensive.

A jaunt amongst local goldsmiths will get you jewellery that is both international in design and uniquely Malaysian, with its own styles and motifs. And like everything else, each ethnic group has stamped its own cultural facets on the styles of jewellery available.

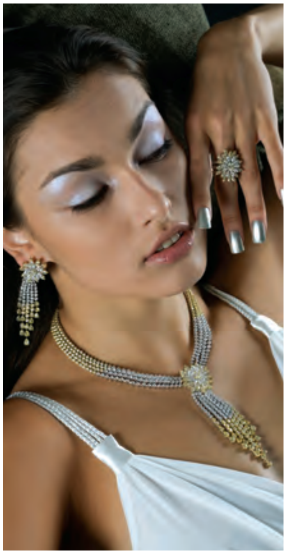

Jewellery can be found easily here from large boutiques in high end malls to quaint goldsmith shops tucked in back lanes and sidewalks. Some states even have gold bazaars where whole streets are lined with little stores. One of the most popular of these is the Penang Gold Bazaar in Georgetown.

Whether you choose from the range of fine 22k-916 gold items and gem-set jewellery, or have a master craftsman fashion the trinket of your desire, you will find that the local stores are more than happy to cater to you with courteous service and good prices. Top local stores are LAZO Diamond Jewellery, Carat Club, My Diamond, Poh Kong, Habib Jewels and K.M Oli Mohammad.

World- renowned jewellery houses like Tiffany & Co, Bvlgari, Gucci, Boucheron, Mouawad, Chopard and Chaumont on the other hand, offer dazzling collections of another kind. From elegant pieces to vintage style art forms, these top tier jewellers present jewel connoisseurs with creations sparkling with brilliant hues and seductive designs that would regally adorn any wearer.

Passionate about time? You will find Malaysia a great place to shop for watches and fine time pieces and what makes it even better is that they are all tax exempted.

Most shopping centres nationwide offer a decent selection of watches which are not only cheaper than in most countries but tend to drop even lower in prices during sale periods. Alba, Seiko, Nautica, Rado and fun watches such as Swatch and Benetton are only a few of the numerous labels you would generally find.

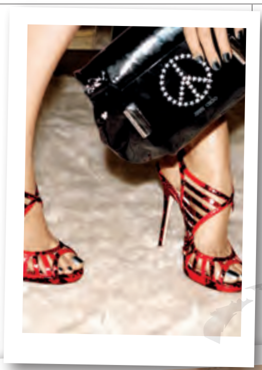

However, if you have a passion for luxurious time pieces, the Starhill Gallery in Kuala Lumpur is the place to head for. Featuring the works of some of the world's leading horologists, it is an oasis for collectors and clients with discerning tastes. Here, you can browse through fine collections from master creators of time pieces like Richard Mille, Armand Nicolet, Roger Dubois, Jaeger Lecoultre, Audemars Piguet and others, and choose from their various designs that famously fuse creativity of design with complexity and precision.

Being Choo-sy About Shoes and Bags

His creations have adorned the feet of many of the world's leading fashionistas, royalties and stars. He reigned at the top, the late Princess Diana's list of favourite designers. His name is synonymous with the glitz and glamour of the fashion arena....he is no other than our very own Dato' Jimmy Choo.

A Penangite from a family of shoemakers, this wunderkind crafted his first shoe at 11 years of age. His outstanding talent for the trade landed him in Cordwainers Technical College in London and further on, led to the opening of his workshop in 1986.

His skilled craftsmanship soon carried him to international fame and into pages of leading fashion magazines, consequently anchoring him as one of the world's most notable and favoured master shoe makers.

Having launched his first stand- alone London boutique in 1996 and later two more boutiques in New York and Los Angeles, his fame could only grow to embrace the star-studded throng of Hollywood. With the growing A-list clientele, his range of merchandise grew as well to include handbags, eyewear and other leather items which can now be found in 32 countries.

With several designer awards under his wing, Dato' Jimmy Choo's brand continues to develop, win more accolades and perhaps most importantly, dress the feet of women all over the world in a strikingly bold and refreshing style!

Art Entertainment in Kuala Lumpur

You don't need a special occasion to buy a piece of art. As well as striking an internal chord, artworks also make great gifts and mementos. These art galleries are great places to escape away to for a couple of hours-better yet at some, you can pick up some rather unique and local-flavoured masterpieces to bring home.

Malaysian handicrafts are not only beautiful but often are functional objects d'art that reflect the diverse and aesthetic values of the communities they originate from. As the melting pot of all that is Asia, Malaysian craftsmen are imbued with an astounding choice of cultural ingredients with which to create their handicrafts. From the batik sarong and silverware to tribal bamboo blowpipes and giant kites, getting to know our numerous handicrafts means to explore a whole world of traditions, techniques, colours and materials.

ARTS & CRAFTS

Handmade in Malaysia

The country's natural resources also help provide a wide array of raw materials for the craftsmen. The lush jungles provide leaves and wood that is the starting point for mengkuang and pandanus weaving, bamboo objects and woodcarving. The country's tin reserves encouraged the development of pewter-based items and the strong winds on the East Coast are naturally suitable for the making and flying of the wau or giant kite.

Owing to the wide range of handicrafts available in Malaysia, one may not know where or how to begin looking for things. One way is to look for specific handicrafts like the batik and songket materials, the kris (traditional Malaysian dagger) or Kelantanese silver jewellery.

Another is to narrow in on specific objects you desire e.g. utensils or clothing and then search for the local handcrafted equivalents. If all else fails, go on a state-by-state handicraft hunt.

Crafts to look out for Fabrics

Batik – The word batik carries with it a range of meanings. It is firstly a process, a fabric dyeing method that involves the use of wax to mark off areas on the fabric that are to remain un-dyed. It can also mean the visual design that is featured in this process, the fabric that is the end result of the process and the endless array of products that use the process or fabric as its base material. Batik designs are often colourful and range from floral motifs to geometric patterns, landscape and even cartoons. Batik products can also be found as bedspreads, slippers, album covers and beautiful art pieces.

Songket – Songket is traditional Malay brocade made of silk or fine cotton cloth interwoven with gold or silver threads. The origin of this beautiful cloth can be traced back to the region's early trading routes with the silk coming from China and the gold and silver threads from India. This rich fabric was once reserved strictly for royalty and is a feature of special social, royal and ceremonial events. Nowadays, the songket is featured in everyday items such as handbags, shoes and even wall decorations.

Pua – Indigenous to the state of Sarawak, Pua Kumbu is a unique fabric that represents the soul of Iban culture and is regarded as a woven mythological tale about the weaver and her affiliation with the spirit world. It is hand-woven on a back-strap loom, interlacing parallel longitudinal threads called the warp with lateral threads called the weft. Variations include the Pua Karap and Pua Sungkit although the Kain Karap or Karap Cloth which makes up the lower half of the traditional Iban costume is the preferred choice as its refined weaving technique adds texture to Ngajat performances, a must during most Iban celebrations.

Tekat – This is the art of gold thread embroidery and the traditional form used only gold thread and sequins exclusively. It was used, primarily by the nobility for both ceremonial and domestic purposes. These ornate designs were used in betel leaf boxes or fashioned into furnishing items such as cushions and fans. It is today used in traditional wedding regalia including bridal outfits, shoes, bed-spreads and mats.

Metal-based handicrafts

Silver – Local silver jewellers produce exquisite pieces through two methods i.e. filigree and repousse. Filigree is delicate, lace-like ornamental work made of fine intertwined silver wire, while repousse is formed in relief as a design or pattern on thin metal, beaten up from the underside.

The state of Kelantan is famous for its beautiful silver jewellery. Earrings, brooches, bracelets and tie clips are some of the items to look out for. Not to be missed are local specialties like the cucuk sanggul (hairpin) and kerongsang, a three-piece brooch set used to fasten the traditional kebaya tunic.

Brass – Brass is an alloy essentially made of copper and zinc. Brass or tembaga kuning, is used mainly for practical reasons and functional items such as kitchen utensils. Items range from plates, cake moulds, pans, candlesticks to incense holders and decorative objects. White metal or tembaga putih is used to produce more refined items such as the tepak sirih (betel nut) sets. Wax moulds are used to create the shape of the brass objects. Once completed, the brass is polished until its brilliant surface emerges.

Pewter – Good pewter is hand cast, not spun. This makes it stronger and heavier, thus allowing for more variety in intricate designs. More complicated items are cast in several parts and then soldered together to form a complete piece. Pewter, being a soft metal can be fashioned in a variety of finishes - matte satin, 'silver-like' brilliant finish or with patterned effects. It can also be treated or aged to create an antique look.

Carvings & Weavings

Weaving – Pandan and mengkuang leaf weaving includes an entire range of handicraft items including mats, placemats, hats and the tudung saji (conical shaped food covering). Similarly, bamboo and rattan are other materials favoured by craftsmen in fashioning baskets, bags, pencil holders and even furniture.

Pottery – Malaysian pottery comes in countless shapes and forms. Amongst them is the unique black labu sayong of Perak, which keeps liquid cool and refreshing and tribal pottery from Sarawak's Iban community.

Wood Carving – Malaysian woodcarvers produce fine souvenir and home decorative items like mirror frames with floral motifs, lamp stands and head boards. In Sarawak, local tribesmen carve wood and bamboo into various items such as utensils, blowpipes, shields, ceremonial masks and decorative figurines. The Mahmeri and Jan Hut aborigines of Peninsular Malaysia are noted for their carvings of mythical creatures related to their folklore.

Pretty Parcels

Colourful boxes, pretty ribbons of paper, satin and silk, eye-catching wrappers artistically arranged - there is just so much fun in gift hunting and wrapping. The excitement becomes even more apparent towards the year end when holidays and festivities bring on the rush of shopping for Christmas and New Year.

If you are looking for new and unique gift ideas during your Malaysian holiday, why not pick up some traditionally crafted gift boxes to contain your festive buys? You will find a great variety of such boxes in the many craft centres throughout the country.

For elegance, go with the delicately carved pewter boxes that come with a shine so bright it makes a gift in itself. The sturdy wood carved boxes on the other hand, feature the warmer earth tones of the various woods they are made from while displaying intricate motifs.

If you're looking for new and unique gift ideas during your Malaysian holiday, why not pick up some traditionally crafted gift boxes to contain your festive buys?

Probably the most attractive are the 'batik' and 'songket' clad boxes. The graceful free flowing patterns of the batik make vibrant, exotic gift boxes while the finely woven gold and silver threads of the 'songket' fit the scene perfectly at weddings and glitzy events.

For something more down to earth, check out the assortment of skilfully woven boxes such as those made from the versatile rattan and bamboo, or the brilliantly hued pandanus and 'mengkuang' leaves. Not only are they rare gift boxes, they also serve as functional storage containers for knick knacks and odd items.

Add a unique Malaysian touch to your spread of gifts this year. Select from the wide array of gift boxes at:

SHOPPING TIP

The wide range of handicrafts available in Malaysia may leave you lost as to what to pick and where to get it from. You could choose specific items like the batik, songket, wau or Malaysian kite or Kelantanese silver jewellery. Alternatively, you could narrow in on the objects you want eg. utensils or clothing and then search for the local handicraft version.

Home Cultivations

While Malaysia is a good place to shop for foreign merchandise, her spread of home grown labels make for superb souvenirs to take home. Many of them have succeeded in penetrating the world market and some, especially in the fashion arena, have gained international attention and fame.

Big names in the market are concentrated towards apparels and accessories like British India, East India Company, Padini, Sembonia, Salabianca, Carlo Rino, Primavera, Lewre, Eclipse, Emanuelle, T-Joue, Poh Kong, Habib Jewels and My Diamond just to name a few.

In the world of fashion, the biggest names are Jimmy Choo, known for his exquisite footwear favoured by many top trend setters and Bernard Chandran, Zang Toi, Tom Abang Saufi and Melinda Looi whose creations have graced the runways of leading fashion capitals.

Parkson's departmental store, Royal Selangor's pewter ware, Proton and Perodua cars, Vincci footwear and Pensonic and Khind electrical appliances have also gone beyond Malaysian shores.

So why not take home something uniquely local?

Shopping Through Malaysia

Welcome to a colourful Malaysian shopping adventure! As you journey from one coast of the country to the other, you will discover that every state has its own special souvenirs to offer. And it's a spread so tempting you'll find yourself filling up those extra suitcases fast.

Perlis/Kedah

The border towns of Padang Besar and Bukit Kayu Hitam in these northern states are popular duty free zones for travellers crossing the border into and out of Thailand. A medley of little stores selling a variety of tax-exempted items and local food can be found here.

Langkawi

This island paradise offers a wide selection of tax - exempted goods ranging from electrical equipment and gadgets to cosmetics, fragrances, chocolates, cigars and more. Indulge in duty free shopping at stores at the airport, Jetty Point Shopping Complex, Langkawi Fair Shopping Mall and Langkawi Parade Megamall.

Penang

The Pearl of the Orient has a charming mixture of old and new shopping opportunities. Georgetown is crammed with shops housed in pre-war buildings selling textile, apparel, food, jewellery, antiques and curios. The Little India district is well known for its gold bazaar, colourful silk sarees and aromatic spices while colourful night markets can be found all over the island - one of the biggest being in Batu Ferringi. Along with others the island's newest shopping mall, Queensbay Mall with its offerings of international labels provides its share of the mall shopping experience.

Perak

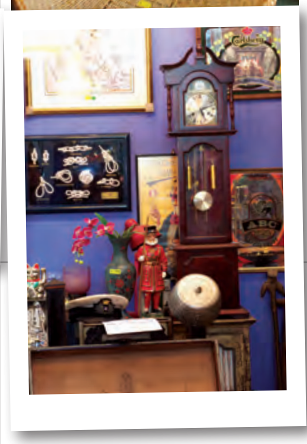

Given its proximity to the Cameron Highlands and the surrounding fruit orchards, visitors will find an abundance of fresh fruits here especially the 'pomelo'. Perak is also famed for its lovely 'Labu Sayong' or gourd - shaped clay pottery that serve as water cisterns as well as decorative items. Off - shore at Pangkor Island, dried seafood products are popular buys.

Selangor/ Klang Valley

Klang Valley is awash with shopping malls and departmental stores catering to the local and foreign masses. The shopping triangle of Bukit Bintang alone bears testimony to the popularity of shopping in Malaysia. Other signature shopping landmarks include the Pavilion Kuala Lumpur, Suria KLCC, Mid Valley Megamall, Sunway Pyramid, 1 Utama, The Curve and The Gardens Mall at Mid Valley City. Even so, smaller malls and stores are plentiful in Klang Valley, offering shoppers not only a wide range of local and imported items but also numerous sale seasons to enjoy.

Melaka

Much of Melaka's charm lies in its rich range of antiques, curios and wonderful cuisine. Jonker Walk is a must for shoppers hunting for exotic souvenirs; here you'll also be able to sample the famous 'Nyonya' food at sidewalk stalls and little cafes. Head for Dataran Pahlawan, Medan Samudera or the stalls along Jalan Merdeka for some interesting handicrafts.

Negeri Sembilan

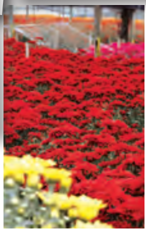

The town of Nilai boomed overnight when it became a wholesale centre for numerous household items. The Nilai 1 section sells a hoard of things ranging from fine wood, rattan and bamboo furniture to textiles, household linens, décor objects and wedding paraphernalia. Nilai 3 is a separate section focussing on textiles alone. Not only is Nilai popular for its wide selection of products, it is also known for its very affordable, lower-than-city centre prices.

Johor

Johor Bahru's malls like the City Square and Danga City Mall are popular not only with local shoppers but also with the mass of Singaporeans who visit daily. Don't miss tax-free goods at The Zon Johor Bahru, a designated duty-free zone within the city. The little town of Ayer Hitam is worth stopping over for its jumble of pottery, ceramic, handicrafts, local snacks and fresh tropical fruits, while Tangkak town is well known for textiles and household linens.

Pahang

Pahang's jungles provide for a wide range of forest products that the aborigine community can be found selling en route to Cameron Highlands and other parts of the state. The highland's abundance of fresh farm produce and flowers are popular purchases too. Batik and handicrafts can be found in Kuantan while further south in Mersing, dried seafood products are the main things to look for.

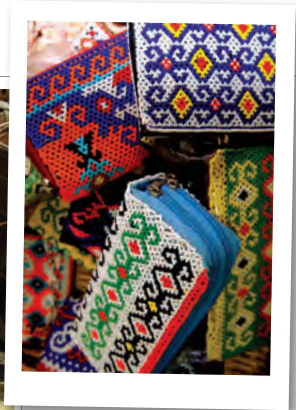

Kelantan/ Terengganu

These states are home to some of the best handicrafts and artwork in the country. Fine 'batik' and 'songket' in textile and apparel forms, graceful 'wau' or giant kites, delicate silver, brass and woodcraft and a whole lot of exotic foods like the famous 'belacan' and 'budu' can be found here.

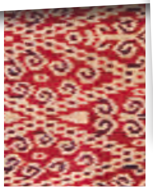

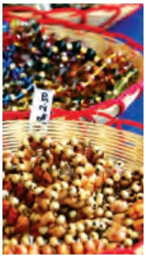

Sabah

Sabah is a treasure trove of unique crafts and souvenirs. Harvested from the surrounding seas and farms, pearls are an absolute must-buy. They can be purchased loose or in pre-set jewelley form. Other great buys are beadwork, hand-woven baskets, the 'Kain Dastar' material, jewellery and Sabah tea. Check out the stretch of handicraft shops in Wawasan Plaza in Kota Kinabalu; for fantastic bargains head over to the Handicraft Market located along Jalan Tun Fuad Stephens.

Sarawak

The Land of the Hornbill offers souvenirs like pottery, beadwork, textiles ('Pua Kumbu'), bamboo, rattan and wood work, reed baskets as well as other exotic stuff like salted 'terubuk' fish, layer cakes and the famed Sarawak pepper and pineapples. Most of these items can be bought at sidewalk stores or bazaars in Kuching, Sibu and Miri.

Labuan

Another duty-free island offering a selection of goods ranging from electrical items to pens, watches, perfumeries and chocolates. Textiles are of special interest here and along Jalan OKK Awang Besar, shoppers can find Chinese jade and ceramic ware, furniture and embroidered material.

Street Wonders

Looking for an adventurous shopping expedition? Well, step out of the swanky malls into our bustling streets. When you see a lane or street packed with bright little stalls, you'll know you've arrived at the wonderful scene of Malaysian street shopping.

No matter which state you're in, you'll definitely find a street market selling the most interesting things to take home. Be it the all-day bazaars or colourful night and flea markets that crop up in nooks and corners, you'll never run out of things to purchase. From textiles to ready made clothes, funky accessories, household goods, fresh produce and food, these marts offer shoppers endless things to browse through and with all that haggling you'll be doing, you'll certainly come away an expert!

Malaysian bazaars usually operate in the daytime although many extend till night. If you're looking for clothing, handicrafts and certain foods, the local bazaar is where you'll find them. In Penang, the Chowrasta Bazaar at Penang Road has been selling its famous nutmegs, preserved fruits and local delicacies for decades while the Kek Lok Si Bazaar offers trinkets and souvenir items all along the uphill route to the temple. On the last Sunday of every month, the Upper Penang Road is turned into a riot of colours by the Little Penang Street Market which features a horde of artefacts from collectibles to ethnic crafts, a children's art corner, musical performances and traditional food.

Dataran Pahlawan Bazaar in Malacca offers great handicrafts and souvenirs; on the weekends, the bustling Jonker Walk is the place to be for those hunting down antiques and art pieces. This is also a great place to pick up some authentic 'Nyonya' delicacies. If you have a thing for pottery and porcelain, check out the Ayer Hitam Bazaar in Johor and if you fancy flowers and plants, the flower market in Cameron Highland's will captivate you with its colours and fragrances. A place not to be missed in Kuala Lumpur is the Central Market with its gold mine of craft treasures.

If you are tired of air-conditioned malls, head down to the streets and check out the bazaars; have fun going around looking for rare finds, trinkets, clothes and other exotic items.

Across the South China Sea, the 'tamu' or open air markets like the ones in Gaya Street in Kota Kinabalu, Donggongon, Tawau and Sandakan and the Satok and India Street markets in Kuching are fabulous spots to not only pick up authentic local souvenirs but also to get a taste of the native lifestyle which is far different from that in the peninsular.

Night markets too, are an integral part of Malaysian life. There is a market in practically every neighbourhood in the country that is set up according to a weekly schedule. Known in local lingo as 'pasar malam', it often operates from late afternoon to late night. Selling just about everything from food to live pets and knick - knacks, the vibrant 'pasar malam' is a 'must-do' on a Malaysian travel list. Do drop in at the famous mile - long Batu Ferringhi night market in Penang,

Many flea markets in Malaysia can be found in upmarket neighbourhoods. Most feature exotic items like exquisite fabrics, unique gemstones and jewellery, handicrafts and fine décor items. Popular flea markets tourists will find worth visiting in Kuala Lumpur are the ones at Amcorp Mall, Plaza Mont Kiara, The Curve and Bangsar Shopping Complex.

Laksa-The Seafood Noodle Temptation

One of the best-loved local food in Malaysia is the laksa, a spicy noodle soup made from fish broth. Though its origin is unclear, the locals have adopted this delicious dish and given the different states in the country (13 to be exact), also adapted it to suit their palate and style. Traveling up and down the country, from east to west Malaysia, visitors can expect to come across the laksa dish, be it the coconut-based curry soup type called curry laksa or the sour fish soup type known as asam laksa.

The noodle used in a laksa dish also differs with each type served, from thick rice noodle, yellow noodle and rice vermicelli (bee hoon or mee hoon) to spaghetti. The laksa is usually garnished with vegetables, cockles, tofu and shrimps, again depending on the type of laksa it is.

Curry laksa

The curry laksa is a coconut-based curry soup, of which main ingredients include the noodle, tofu puffs, fish sticks, shrimps and cockles (optional). The laksa is usually served with 'sambal' or chilli paste and is traditionally garnished with Vietnamese coriander or laksa leaf known in Malay as 'daun kesum'.

Other variants of the curry laksa include the Nyonya Laksa which has a rich coconut gravy and the Laksam, a specialty of the Northeastern Malaysian states of Kelantan and Terengganu, made with very thick flat white rice flour noodles in a rich, full-bodied white gravy of boiled fish and coconut milk. Traditionally, the Laksam is eaten with fingers due to the thick consistency of the gravy.

Kelantan also has its own version of the commom laksa. The main ingredient in this noodle dish is ikan kembong or round scad mackerel that is boiled, minced and then fried with onions, garlic, ginger, 'datil' pepper, belacan or shrimp paste, bunga kantan (torch ginger flower), Vietnamese coriander, lemon grass and dried tamarind slice. Coconut milk is then added as the final ingredient and stirred until it becomes thick.
The laksa is served with ulam (raw vegetables) and blended chilli on the side.

Assam laksa

The asam laksa has a sour fish-based soup. Asam (or asam jawa) is the Malay word for tamarind and is commonly used to give the stock its sour flavor. It is also common to use asam keping or asam gelugor (dried slices of tamarind fruit) for added sourness.

The main ingredient for the asam laksa is shredded fish. The dish is then garnished with finely sliced vegetables including cucumber, onions, red chillies, pineapple, lettuce, mint and bunga kantan, and topped off with petis udang or hae ko, a thick sweet prawn/ shrimp paste.

Other variants of the asam laksa include the Laksa Penang, Laksa Perlis and Laksa Kedah, which are made from poached and flaked mackerel fish or eel flesh, lemongrass, lengkuas (galangal) and chilli. In the case of Laksa Perlis and Laksa Kedah, sliced boiled eggs are added to the dish as part of the garnishing.

Some types of laksa mix together coconut milk and fish and can be identified as either curry or asam laksa. These would be the Laksa Johor, from the Johor state in southern Malaysia and the Laksa Sarawak, from the state of Sarawak, on the island of Borneo.

Laksa Johor resembles the Laksa Penang only in the kind of fish used but differs in everything else. It contains coconut milk, kerisik (grated, toasted and ground coconut paste), dried prawns, lemon grass, galangal and spices. The dish is served with spaghetti and garnished with onion slices, beansprouts, mint leaves, Vietnamese coriander, cucumber and pickled white radish. Sambal belacan (a kind of chili paste) is placed on the side. Finally, and just before eating, fresh lime juice is squeezed into the dish.

The Laksa Sarawak has no curry in it at all. It has a base of sambal belacan, tamarind, garlic, galangal, lemon grass and coconut milk garnished with omelette and chicken strips, prawns, fresh coriander and lime (optional).

One of the places that serve all the different types of laksa found in Malaysia is the Laksa Shack. So head on down to the restaurant and give the laksa a taste. Now the only problem you are going to face is – which laksa to have?

The origin of the name laksa is not without its mysteries. One theory traces it back to the Hindi and Persian word lakhshah which refers to a type of vermicelli. Others suggest that the word may have derived from the Chinese word la sha (pronounced latsa in Cantonese) meaning "spicy sand" due to the ground dried prawns which makes the gravy taste extremely sandy or the similar sounding word for "dirty" in Hokkien due to its appearance.

Hole in The Wall Floating Restaurant

Fancy catching your own meal? The Hole In The Wall at Langkawi's Kilim River lets you do precisely that! With its very own fish farm or 'kelong' attached alongside an extraordinary floating restaurant, you can literally swing your catch right from the waters onto your table.

The restaurant snuggles amongst swampy surroundings and rugged limestone mountains that make up part of the Kilim Karst Geoforest Park. It provides complimentary boat services that pick guests up from the Kilim River jetty; alternatively stopovers can be made at the restaurant whilst on the mangrove tour. It is nothing fancy really but a down to earth wooden set-up serving super fresh, sumptuous seafood meals.

While some visitors settle for the buffet spread and set meals, others can choose from the array of fresh seafood on display and have it cooked to their preference. The lobsters, succulent prawns, sting rays and sea bass are popular especially when grilled with the cook's special piquant and aromatic turmeric paste. Another must try is the delicate and tender 'Barramundi' cooked in a curry that simply sets off every taste bud.

The space housing the numerous types of fish is divided into small enclosures separating each species. Among the array of marine life you will find here are the huge and somewhat intimidating Tiger Garoupa, Red Snapper, Horse Shoe Crab and Stingray. Look out for the Archer Fish skilfully spouting water at its feed placed above the water surface.

While great seafood cuisine is common in Langkawi, the Hole In The Wall throws in the added bonus of a unique dining adventure in a completely natural setting. The experience is made even more memorable by the superb quality of food which is often accompanied by the amazing sight of the Brahminy Kites and White-Bellied eagles gliding close by.

Tulsi Garden

An Indian culinary spread that highlights seafood prepared in unique ways is probably something you would least expect in a place like Langkawi - still, get your appetite ready!

Sitting along the popular restaurant and bar stretch in Pantai Tengah, 'Tulsi' with its Sanskrit meaning as the 'incomparable one' certainly lives up to the promise of whipping up the finest of Indian fares on the island. The ambience and warm service is typical to that of a resort island; so what is it that makes this little place differ from others? Certainly, the various blends of Indian spices used on items you rarely find on the menu of the typical Indian restaurant. Fresh lobsters, king prawns, squid and crabs featured in ways authentic to the chef's own recipes make the Tulsi experience completely refreshing. Each plateful bubbles with the subtle combination of Indian and Malaysian flavours, extracting the full appeal of every dish.

Some of Tulsi's signature items are the Seafood Soup, a rich and creamy herbal concoction of mixed seafood, the Special Caesar Salad with slices of Chicken Tikka, the Butter King Prawns served in a rich tomato base and the Black Pepper Steak, a fusion recipe of a western dish prepared in Indian style. Top of the list however is the Tulsi Garden Lobster, an exquisite fare delicately cooked in dashes of Asian spices.

Don't let the legendary spiciness of Indian cuisine scare you away; the cooks are especially skilled at preparing palatable curries and gravies tailored to meet various spice tolerance, from mild to extra hot. Or if you prefer your meal barbequed but packed with just as much juice, opt for the 'tandoori' or Indian – styled clay oven barbeque, incidentally the restaurant's most popular cooking method. Whatever your choice of seafood or meat, into the oven it definitely can go.

To accompany your dishes, choose from the variations of fragrant rice prepared in the styles of 'biryani', 'pulao', 'jeera' or simply steamed plain. Just as good are the freshly baked breads hoisted straight out of the tandoor oven. These too come in variations sprinkled with garlic, raisins, butter, cheese and minced meat, making them awesome accompaniment for the vegetable and other meat dishes. And if all that spice has got you a little heated up, cool down with a few traditional Indian sweets like the delicate 'Raz Malai', 'Gulab Jamun' or 'Kulfi'. The restaurant is also well known for its vegetarian options which can be ordered as individual dishes and set or 'thali' meals.

A meal at the Tulsi will treat you to the multitude flavours and aromas of authentic and contemporary Indian cuisine, an experience made even more pleasant by breeze from the nearby sea. Drop in to discover a fine seafood surprise.

Feasting By The Sea

It is no secret that Langkawi serves up some of the best seafood in the region; so if you are holidaying on the island, do spare some time to tuck into the fare at the Bamboo Beach Restaurant in Kuah town.

Situated along a back road, the little restaurant sits right at the water's edge against the backdrop of mountains and fishing boats moored at a tiny beach. Part of the restaurant is fashioned after a boat and juts out to the sea on which the tables are set. There are tables beneath umbrellas made of coconut leaf weavings too.

The restaurant has its own fish farm or 'kelong' which is a short boat ride up front. Adventurous patrons can hop into a boat and make their way over to picking out or even catching their own live seafood!

But less about the place and more about the food. There is only one way to describe it - absolutely yummy! Prepared by a small team of cooks from Bangkok and trained in Malay and Thai cooking styles, it seems like you can't go wrong no matter what you pick off the menu. Every dish that comes to the table outdoes the last. You can't expect any less really, knowing that much of the seafood is whisked right off the fishing boats as soon as they return each evening.

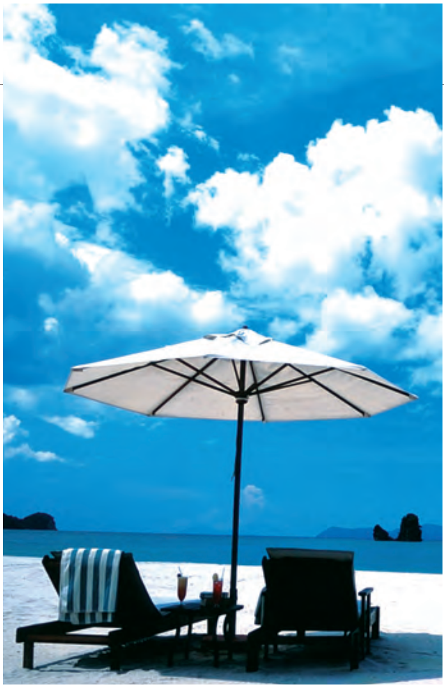

The varieties of 'Tom Yam' soup carry just the right balance of sour and spicy flavours and are packed with succulent bits of chicken, fish, squid and prawns. Pick the 'Seabass' or 'Grouper' fish and have it done in the '3 flavours' style and add on some chilli or black pepper crabs. The 'Sambal Udang' or prawns in chilli paste and the squid fritters are good too. Top up with the popular Mango Salad or 'Kerabu Mangga' and you'll be having yourself one of the best meals on the island.

Lively Thai music in the background keeps the tempo up while eagles swooping down from the mountains to feed off the water surface provide another manner of entertainment. The colourful atmosphere is often punctuated by compliments on the dishes arriving at the tables. Drop in for a meal and you will leave with just as many compliments.

A Place For All Seasons

If there is one thing that could possibly add to the allure of Langkawi, it is a haven called the Four Seasons Resort. Beautiful, mesmerising and tranquil, these are only a few of the words that describe this 48-acre jewel of the Cape of the Casuarina.

Caressed by the azure waters of the Andaman Sea on one side and age old mountains on the other, the Four Seasons is a precious gem held up in the palm of magical Langkawi. Opulent Mughal architecture blend with delicate Malaysian woodwork to create that faraway escape from the moment you step through the doors to walk past the glow of The Wall of Lanterns.

Lush landscapes, shades of green with the colourful streaks of tropical blossoms lead to luxurious pavilions and villas designed with ultimate privacy in mind. The warm timber flooring, Middle Eastern inspired décor, gorgeous terrazo Turkish 'hammam' baths, outdoor rain showers, private plunge pools and spa rooms are adorned with the exclusive touches that set the resort apart from others. Called the Melaleuca Pavilions, Beach and Royal villas, each room is sumptuously furnished with astounding views of the gardens, beach and sea. The Upper Melaleuca Pavilions in particular are perfect as romantic love nests while the Royal Villa simply put, is fit for a king!

There are two pools in the resort; an adult quiet pool with private cabanas where guests are served with fruit slices and iced popsicles and a family pool, a sheer work of art played up by fountains and water curtains set against a backdrop of dark green forests. Drop by the pool at the right time and you could even get yourself free shoulder massages.

The Four Seasons' retail offerings have to be the best found in the country. Boutiques and galleries display stunning collections of fashion creations, jewellery and crafts giving guests no reason to step beyond the resort for retail therapy.

Caressed by the azure waters of the Andaman Sea on one side and age old mountains on the other, the Four Seasons is a precious gem held up in the palm of magical Langkawi.

Dining in any of the outlets is nothing short of a delightful experience. From the Serai serving colourful Mediterranean and Italian fare to Ikan - Ikan which features the freshest harvest from Langkawi's waters in Malay, Thai and Chinese recipes, every meal is memorable. Kafe Kelapa is the perfect place to grab light bites and cocktails while lazing in the afternoon breeze and to enjoy sunsets, there probably can be no better spot than the Rhu Bar.

To complete the Langkawi Four Seasons experience, one must spend a few hours at The Spa. Once again, the combination of Mughal and Malaysian influences welcome you into an oasis that soothes and pampers in unequalled ways. But to know more, you'll simply have to stay at the resort on your next Malaysian vacation. Words are sufficient to describe some places but for a treasure trove such as the Four Seasons Resort Langkawi, nothing less than a tangible experience will do the job!

A Spanish Home By The Sea

The last thing you would expect to find on a tropical island like Langkawi is a Spanish inspired resort but that is exactly what the Casa del Mar is. Meaning 'Home By the Sea', this boutique resort of just 34 rooms is a little jewel along the tourist beachfront of Cenang. While every other resort in the area subscribes to the tropical beach resort concept, Casa as it is fondly called, breaks the mould to surprise with a Mediterranean look and feel.

Small it may be but Casa spares no effort in designing the most refreshing getaway for its guests. The rooms are furnished in rustic Mediterranean fashion with four poster canopy beds and sea facing balconies in the suite rooms. There is even a hammock in the balcony for guests to sink into and lazily enjoy the sea breeze and gorgeous sunsets the Cenang beach is famed for.

The La Sal dining experience is not to be missed whatever the time of day. From an airy patio spilling over to a sun–kissed poolside area which extends further to beachfront dining right on the sand and beneath swaying coconut trees, every meal is a delightful experience. Breakfast is a classic fare of local and traditional European a la carte dishes, gourmet coffees, teas and juices while the Afternoon High Tea certainly has to be the best on the island. Hot scones that crumble to the touch served alongside thick clotted cream, jam and chocolate sauce, cakes, delicate cucumber sandwiches, salmon rolls, fruit slices and aromatic tea and coffee make this affair one of the highlights of the resort.

The La Sal Poolside Bar is the place to be at for a spot of colour. Try your hand at the 'Wheel of Fortune' to win free drinks and check out names of the resort's repeat guests engraved as Fish Club members on the bar walls. The candlelit beachside dinner is an excellent way to view Cenang's breath taking sunsets while savouring an exquisite spread of Eastern and Western cuisine. Make sure to order the 'Deep Fried Kataifi Prawns' and 'Baked Australian Rack of Lamb'!

Finally wind down from dinner at the Wine and Cigar Room, which like its namesake, is just the place to have a glass of wine or a Havana cigar while reading a novel. Couples celebrating special occasions must try out the candlelit La Luna romantic beach dinner and its seven-course gourmet dinner.

There is even a hammock in the balcony for guests to sink into and lazily enjoy the sea breeze and gorgeous sunsets that the Cenang beach is famed for.

For more R&R, drop in at The Spa, Casa's own centre for rejuvenation. Offering various local therapies, this is a great place to indulge in before ending your island holiday.

Temple Tree Haven

Time stands still when you venture into the Temple Tree at Bon Ton… that is till you feel the warm swish of a cat's tail against your leg bringing you out of your reverie into the present day. Still, you would continue to wonder if you had chanced upon some long hidden treasure of the mystical island of Langkawi.

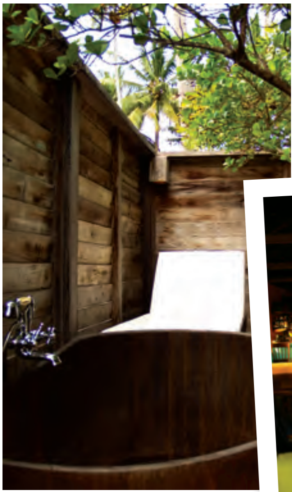

What meets your eye is a rich showcase of heritage homes from various corners of Malaysia. Even more intriguing is that they were dismantled at their original locations, transported to Langkawi and reassembled on the spot where they currently stand. They have all since been lovingly restored, the interiors styled with Asian antiques.

The houses are between 70 to 110 years old and carry the stamp of Malaysia's rich cultural make-up through designs displaying Chinese, Malay, Indian and Eurasian origins. They collectively offer 12 rooms, 13 suites and 8 villas for guests to select from and at rates much lower than you would be expected to pay at other deluxe resorts.

The Straits Club House, a 90 year old Eurasian bungalow serves as the reception and also houses the library, bar and restaurant, although candlelit dining can also be enjoyed around the pool. Speckled around this Club House in typical local village environs are the gorgeous houses, each different from the next yet as exotic.

The story of Temple Tree began around the small Chinese temple resting at the foot of a tree. It may be the shrine's energies or just sheer art and passion that have cast the graceful charm blanketing this resort. Be it what it may, the Temple Tree surpasses others in offering you a Malaysian experience you won't find elsewhere.

Up, Up & Away

For many years the Genting Highlands was the only place in Malaysia with cable car services. Now, Langkawi too offers great cable car rides that look out to spellbinding sights of the legendary island and its surroundings.

While the islands of Langkawi already claim fame as a tropical paradise, viewing the scenery from the skies makes a totally different picture. The embarking point rests at the foot of the majestic Mat Cincang range within the Oriental Village.

Despite the captivating sights that come into view as the cars steadily gain height, the faint - hearted are often intimidated by that feeling of hanging loose in the air. But if you're the adventurous sort who wouldn't raise a brow at bungy jumping and the like then this will be a most thrilling trip. The fun increases when there's a little more wind than usual and the cars begin to sway gently from side to side!

It takes about 20 minutes to get from the starting point to the first station. The ride brings into view, a Langkawi of a different kind from the one we are used to seeing. On a clear day, the pristine view is dotted with Langkawi's many little islands and the outcrop of the ancient Mat Cincang mountain range projecting itself onto brilliant blue skies. On cloudier days, it looks artistically charming with mists floating by and sudden glimpses of the lush green beyond. Either way, it's a photographer's delight while other visitors find the scenery and the cooler temperatures a most refreshing experience. An evening ride is especially lovely, as you get to view stunning sunsets on the horizon.

Coming off the ride, visitors can pick up fancy souvenirs at the handicraft and duty free stores strewn across the Oriental Village. There are animal farms too where visitors are allowed to pet and feed the deer and rabbits.

Get adventurous, leave the beaches and the hammocks alone for a while and come up to the skies in Langkawi - see these ancient islands from a new height.

The 'Spirit of Langkawi' is a great choice for those wanting to sample exotic local therapy. A scrub made of honey, turmeric, tamarind and black sesame seed is applied all over the body after which the guest is covered in a wrap for about twenty minutes to allow its nutritional values to seep into the skin. The scrub is then removed in an exfoliation process and the guest made to soak in a fragrant bath of lemon grass, kafir lime leaves, lime slices and orchids. This is followed by a full body Malay massage which alternates long strokes with pressure point kneading meant to soothe muscles and improve blood circulation.

The Spa at the Four Seasons

The Spa at Four Seasons Resort Langkawi is reminiscent of a remote and peaceful Asian village. Its six thatched roof pavilions are perched beneath a dramatic limestone cliff at the heart of the Resort. Each is surrounded by lotus ponds and lush gardens creating a private sanctuary for those seeking the ultimate escape.

The tranquil environment makes guests feel as if the spa was created just for them. The experience begins and ends in the seclusion of the spa pavilion, where guests can prepare for a treatment, spend an entire day of pampering and then unwind – all while the staff focus on their specific needs. Spacious enough for a private yoga lesson or a massage for two and equipped with outdoor rain showers and plunge pools, each pavilion feels like a world away from the rest of the Resort.

Complementing the peaceful natural surroundings is a range of treatments inspired by the country's rich cultural diversity, with Malaysian and Indonesian massages, Ayurvedic treatments from India and ancient Chinese rituals. The Spa therapists themselves echo the multicultural influences of Malaysia and are recruited from Thailand, Bali and India for their specific expertise.

Custom-designed signature treatments feature prominently in the Spa offerings. Shanti Shanti Shanti is a special combination of sacred practices, beginning with an hour-long private session with the Resort's Indian yogi who teaches techniques in breathing, stretching and meditating. With new-found calm, the guest then receives an Indian herbal oil massage and Shirodhara, where warm oil and herbs are streamed onto the forehead. The treatment incorporates elements of Reiki to eliminate any vestiges of stress and encourage complete relaxation. Following a gentle steam and shower, the guest is invited to savour traditional Indian Spice Chai.

Malaysian Mist is a treatment that echoes the dewy steam that rises over the granite cliff behind the Resort. First the guest is treated to a hot steam bath and cooled with a shower before enjoying a traditional Malay massage. A body scrub of organic lemongrass and coconut follows with a refreshing rinse in the outdoor rain shower, with three oversized showerheads. Next is a luxuriating soak in the outdoor bath, prepared with special oils and fresh flowers. A soothing tropical lotion is used for hydration and the guest then relaxes with a pot of Pandan Herbal Tea.

Truly Asia embraces the senses with a myriad of ingredients including ginger, basil, mint, tumeric, lemongrass and ginseng. First, the therapist immerses the guest's feet in a Chinese herbal crystal mud while performing an oriental head massage. A combination of reflexology and the Spa's own Asian Fusion Massage, which includes a variety of massage techniques and stretching, gets the energy flowing from head to toe. A traditional Indonesian spice scrub renews the skin before a cooling lemongrass and lime herbal bath. Gentle scents of mandarin, ginger and lemon linger after the skin is caressed with an application of Yin Yang Lotion.

The products used at the Spa are from the Sundari and Sodashi lines. Sundari, which means 'beautiful woman' in Sanskrit, offers a selection of products blending essential oils and herbs inspired by the ancient science of Ayurveda. Sodashi translates into 'wholeness, purity and radiance' and its products are derived from all natural sources of the earth and sea.
